Hydrangeas are everywhere in Georgia. I know I grew up with them around our house. I constantly picked them for my mom, and it seemed like there was always an endless supply in our garden. I later learned that it is super easy to propagate and because of that, hydrangeas basically grow themselves. Some types such as the Bigleaf hydrangeas or H. macrophylla, can change flower color depending on what's in the soil. Want darker blue flowers, lower the soil pH. Increase your pH and make colors pop like pink and reds. Be careful though because a pH above 7.5 can damage your hydrangeas. Also, hydrangeas do lose color as they start to fade. Usually this happens in the Fall.

Hydrangeas are considered shrubs and grow in hardiness zones 3-7. Hydrangeas like the sun of the day with shade in the evening. They can grow up to 15' tall and will spread throughout your garden if you let them. They bloom in Spring and Summer, while Fall is the best time to plant them, followed by Spring. Our favorite types are Oakleaf, Bigleaf, and Endless Summer.

TEAM BAILEY

JUSTIN - He is our Owner and President. He started this company many years ago with just a truck and a dream. At the head of this family and team, Justin has 20 years in this industry and continues to grow this company every year by adding new services such as our hauling division we just opened in January of this year!

DAN- He has over 35 years in this field. He is both a Horticulturist and an Arborist. He graduated from Vanderbilt and use to teach gardening at the Centerville Community Center. He's here to help you with all your landscape design needs!

MEREDITH- She is estimating. She takes every estimate, gets them into our system, and makes sure they get into your hands. She also calls to check on you and see what else we can do for you!

APRIL - She holds down the front office and just joined our team in January. If you need an appointment, call and April will be more than happy to schedule you!

VICKI- She is our Office Manager and handles customer support, finances, and handles all out advertising. She's been with our company 12 years and will be 12 more!
